Behind the magnificent Taj Mahal lies cluster of dingy homes where Chanda, a domestic help, stays with her 14-year-old daughter Appu. The mother daughter duo are as different as chalk and cheese. Chanda aspires that her daughter will study and be successful in life. Appu's world is limited to watching Bollywood films and having care-free life. Appu believes that just like a doctor's son becomes a doctor, her future is of a domestic help.

An aghast Chanda, with help from her employer, Mrs. Dewan, a professor joins Appu's school to encourage her to study. Competition brews between them leading to resentment and distance in their relationship.

In a county where 1/3 of girls drop out of school and education is the only way to success, "Nil Battey Sannata" is story of an underprivileged woman who empowers herself and her daughter to earn respect and their rightful place under the sun.
